

MaineDOT is working hard to ensure smooth sailing this summer... and a more beautiful Ogunquit when we're through!

Ogunquit is one of Maine's most beautiful towns – and Route 1 through Ogunquit is one of Maine's most traveled roads, which has taken a big toll over the years.

That's why MaineDOT has embarked on a major project to reconstruct Route 1 and build two new bridges, over the Ogunquit and Josias Rivers. At the same time, the sidewalks and streetscape at the heart of the village will get a major facelift thanks to additional funding from the town of Ogunquit. While the project will have an impact on traffic over the coming 19 months, the good news is that road construction will cease from June 18 through Labor Day. Though work on the new bridges will continue, temporary bridges will keep traffic moving.

Outside of the summer period, we will be working long and hard to finish the project by December 30, 2016. In the meantime, we'll keep you updated on our progress and any traffic impacts.
